Condition of the Interior. It is certainly somewhat encouraging, after reading of the impoverished condi-tion of many parts of the West, to turn to our own State and find that the people, generally are well supplied with the necessaries of life for the Winter. If the reports brought from the interior by persons who have traveled in that region during the fall, and who have had op-portunities of studying the real condition portunities of studying the real condition of affairs, border even on accuracy, our people have many reasons for giving thanks and taking courage. While Kansas and Nebraska are wrestling with starvation and asking alms of the East, the yeomen of our hills are surrounded with multifarious comforts, and need not be afraid of having to cast themselves on the charities of other people. The harvests the charities of other people. The harvests of affairs, border even on accuracy, our be afraid of having to cast themselves on the charities of other people. The harvests of the summer were up to the average throughout the whole state. The lightness of the hay crop was more than counterbalanced by the yield of wheat, which was the largest that has been known for years, and the fields of corn the transfer of the mean tendence o that were withered and scorched by the intense heat of the midsummer's sup. caiving the benefits of the latter rains.

of the destitution in the West he ought to be able to discover that there is somequondam neighbor who became disgusted and discouraged with "perpendicular farming" long ago, and journeyed toward the setting sun, where money was reported to be exceedingly plenty and labor to-day who would be glad to return to the land of their birth it they only had money enough to pay traveling expenses. The soil of the hills would prove quite attractive to them just now; they could Laughtin's Infant Cordial. rest in peace from the ravages of the grasshopper, and, mere than all clae, they could appreciate a good thing after their season of adventure and deprivation. A great many of them have learned, by passing through a course of unfortunate experience, what JONES, of Georgia, learned when he went to Texas, that there is a good deal "more in the man than there is in the land." Business matters in the interior are said to be in as good condition as could reasonably be expected. Most of the country merchants are doing a very fair trade, and although the stringency in money matters prevents them from rigid ly enforcing the cash system, the majority of them are able to meet the demands made upon them by the wholesale merchants of the city. The country people of the state have never felt very keenly the effects of the financial crash: Although there is a protty general cry about the hardness of the times and a scarcity of money, the lamentation is recognizable as the same which often went up before the panic. If the villages of the interior depended on various manufacturing industries for their existence, as do most of the villages of New England, then there might be some plausible reason for attributing the scarcity of money in the rural districts to the same cause that has produced the scarcity elsewhere. As it is, the bucolic inhabitant knows nothing of "strikes," and is wholly ignorant of the disastrous consequences of a "lockout." The principal trouble lies in the fact that the products of most of the inte- Practical Decorator. rior counties are barely sufficient to sat-13'9 the home demands. All work promptied. This trouble will no doubt be remedied. At HARBOUR & DITMAN'S, No. 1699 MAIN ST., WHEELING. died in the course of time. Within two years past there has been quite an influx of enterprising people from Pennsylvania and Ohio into the interior and border counties of the State, who have already discovered the right plan to get more money. Some of these new comers are engaged in the lumber business on the Ty garts Valley river. Another colony of them are at work in the rich but undeveloped coal and timber regions of the Little Kanawha; and we are told that over a hundred families from Ohio have BOOKS & STATIONERY crossed the river and settled in Pleasants Tyler and the northern part of Ritchie county. These people have exhibited a of the intelligent public to a few words in co shrewdness that is worthy of imitation. They sold their improved Ohio lands for filty and sixty dollars per acre and bought partly improved lands, equally as good on this side, of the river for ten and vated and intelligent community. twenty dollars per acre. This new element will prove a valuable addition to our population before many years.
